

STATISTICAL ANALYSIS OF LIGHTNING DATA

Miguel Vázquez-Prada (1), Álvaro González (2), Javier B. Gómez (2) and Amalio F. Pacheco

(1) Departamento de Física Teórica, Universidad de Zaragoza, Pedro Cerbuna 12, 50009 Zaragoza, Spain, (2) Departamento de Ciencias de la Tierra, Universidad de Zaragoza, Pedro Cerbuna 12, 50009 Zaragoza, Spain.

Using electric discharge data obtained in the 90's in the Iberian Peninsula and New Mexico, we perform a statistical study of the spatial and temporal correlations between successive lightning events. The two sets of data present a remarkably similar behaviour. Characteristic length and time intervals related to the dimensions of an average thunder-storm cell are identified.